

Move Out Guarantor Guide

The lease ends at 12PM EST on the lease's end

This guide outlines important deadlines and responsibilities so there are no surprises at the end of the lease term.

Please keep in mind that residents remain financially responsible for the unit through the end of their lease, even if they move out or return their keys early. All keys must be returned to the office by 12:00 PM on the lease end date. Keys returned after 12:00 PM will result in a late key return fee of $100 per person, per day.

Things To Know

As move out approaches, there are several important items residents are responsible for completing before their lease ends and keys are returned.

Before move out, residents should:

- Pay all outstanding balances in full
- Remove all personal belongings and thoroughly clean the entire unit
- Return all keys by the lease end date and time

If the resident lives with roommates, encourage them to communicate early about move out plans and responsibilities. Ensure that any damages to the common areas are addressed such as wall holes. All damages to the unit are split up amongst the residents of the unit unless we receive a notice in writing that one resident will take over certain damages.

This includes damages to one person's bedroom. Since we do not assign rooms, we do not have any record of who lived in what room and we cannot charge any person solely unless they accept the charges in writing.

The only exception is for individual leases: if the resident has an assigned bedroom in a roommate matched lease, they will be solely responsible for damages in their assigned room plus a split of any common area damages.

Often times, fixing small things like wall holes or broken blinds will be cheaper to fix on your own rather than for us to fix it then charge you. This is due to materials and labor costs. If you have any questions about whether or not you may be charged for something, feel free to email the office with photos or videos at info@jacksonpropertiesinc.com.

The house, apartment, townhome should look like it did on move in day.

Clean and empty.

Should I Fix It?

If the resident caused some minor damages, there are certain things that you are welcome and encouraged to repair as it will save you money vs us fixing it and billing you. Here are some examples...

Common Area

- Replace broken appliance parts by looking at model and unit #
- Spackle any drywall holes
- Purchase and hang new blinds if broken
- Repaint walls to original color (if painted)
- Replace broken/missing lights and put light fixtures back (if removed)

Bed/Bathrooms

- Tighten a loose toilet seat or replace
- Replace a broken, missing, or rusted shower rod
- Replace a broken or missing toilet paper holder/rod
- Replace a broken or missing towel rod
- Replace broken/missing light bulbs

Take a look at the detailed charge list in this guide to see what other things you could fix/remedy on your own.

If there is anything the resident isn't sure about fixing on their own, feel free to contact the office.

Call, text, or email us anytime with any questions, and a leasing agent will say if they are good to go on fixing it! We can also steer them in the right direction for replacing things like fridge parts.

Examples of Charges

Here are a few examples of things that could lead to post move out charges. Every piece of food, trash, and belongings need to be removed from the unit and everything left in the unit needs to be clean.

We understand that roommate situations can be challenging, especially when one resident moves out early and leaves behind belongings or damage. Charges related to cleaning or damages within the unit are divided among all residents unless the responsible resident accepts the charges in writing.

Encouraging the resident to coordinate with roommates before move out can help prevent unexpected charges for everyone.

Tenant Communications

We regularly communicate with our residents about office events, expectations, cleaning tips, and more via text and email. Explore some of the things we send out to our residents.

Move In & Move Out Guides

These guides are sent before residents move in or out, respectively. They thoroughly outline how to have a smooth moving process as well as our expectations for all residents. We highly recommend guarantors to look over these documents as well, especially if you are helping the resident move.

*for emergency only. $200 fine for nuisance calls

This number is to be used for after hours emergencies only. The only thing we will call out after hours maintenance crews for is a sewage backup. Things like a non-functioning AC are not considered an emergency. If your emergency is threatening your safety, call 911 immediately.

We are here to answer any questions from residents and guarantors alike. You can text, call, or email us at any time with questions and our dedicated leasing agents will be in contact with you as soon as possible. To ensure issues are addressed quickly and accurately, we encourage parents and guarantors to have residents contact us directly whenever possible. Since we are not present in the home, we rely on residents to let us know when maintenance concerns or other issues arise so we can provide the best assistance.

FAQs

When will the final move out statement be available?

Final statements are mailed or emailed within 30 days after the lease end date to the first resident listed on the lease. Guarantors may request a copy via email.

What is considered normal wear and tear?

Normal wear and tear is expected from every day use. Any excessive dirt, stains, wall damage, broken blinds, unauthorized paint, and missing items are not considered normal wear and tear and may result in charges.

If a resident moved out before their roommates, can that resident still be charged for damages?

Yes. Common area damages and cleaning charges are divided among all residents unless responsibility for the damage is accepted by another resident in writing. Residents should coordinate with roommates to ensure the unit remains in acceptable condition.

Can someone else return keys to the office for us?

Yes. A friend, family member, or roommate may return keys on the resident's behalf.

Can we mail the keys to the office?

Yes, you may mail the keys to the office but they must arrive to us before the move out time. Please account for shipping and handling time. Mail to 1341 Jackson Bluff Rd, Tallahassee, FL, 32304.

What happens if we have an unpaid balance after move out?

Any remaining balance is the responsibility of the resident and the guarantor and should be paid promptly to avoid further collection efforts.

Do utilities need to stay on until the lease ends?

Yes. Utilities should remain active through the lease end date, even if the resident moves out early.

What if we never submitted an Existing Damages Form?

The Existing Damages Form is due within seven days of move in. If it was not submitted, we may not have documentation showing the condition of the unit at move-in. Any damages found during move-out will be evaluated using our inspection records.
